In whispers of ancient, sacred tales,
Where justice walks and truth prevails,
We learn to lift our voices high,
For future worlds, for earth and sky.

Our Bible speaks, with words so clear,
To stand for those we hold so dear.
It tells us to defend the weak,
To use our strength so truth may speak.

Through storms of doubt and winds of fear,
We find the courage to persevere.
With faith in hand, we'll pave the way,
For brighter, kinder, fairer days.

Financial powers, vast and strong,
We call them out when they go wrong.
For with our faith, we fight for right,
A spark against the darkest night.

We're taught soft laws and how to stand,
To speak our truth, to make demands.
And if that fails, we know the call—
To find the courts and give our all.

From gentle talks to bold appeals,
We seek what's just, for wounds to heal.
Together, we'll make justice rise,
And shape a world that never dies.

So, let us walk this path so wide,
With faith as strength and hope as guide.
For we are young, yet fierce and free,
In faith, in love, in unity.
